Coastal Carolina University underwent many changes during the 1994-95 school year. The inauguration of a new president established Coastal as an independent university. This book is a pictorial account of the events that shaped Coastal into a new institution for higher learning.

Starting A New Tradition

Coastal Carolina University

P.O. 1954 Conway, SC 29526
(803) 349-2332
Enrollment 4,812

*T*radition. It is just one word, but it stood for so much this year.

A new day was dawning for Coastal Carolina University during the 1994-1995 school year. *F*inally Coastal was completely independent from its mother campus--University of South Carolina. For those who had been here for several years, there was a noticeable difference. *F*rom new school colors and new logo to new buildings and offices, Coastal started to become its own institution.

With this advancement came the start of new traditions. *C*ampus life as it was known would be changed forever.

Coastal is a diversified campus that has something to offer everyone. Starting a new tradition means that barriers must be broken. Each fall the international club sponsors an international food day during which members serve food from various countries.

Getting a head start is what freshman orientation is all about. It lasts three days and gives the new students a chance to become acquainted with the campus and all it has to offer.

Deep conversations have taken place on "Philosophers Rock". The Giant rock is located between the library and Kerns Hall. Since its appearance some years ago, students have often been seen lounging on it while chatting with friends.

All work and no play can cause any student to stress out. Physical activity, like a game of volleyball, relieves a lot of tension for students. Since there is a permanent sand volleyball area right outside the dorms, it makes it easy for students to “de-stress” themselves.

Discoveries are made every day by Coastal students. A vast new world awaits students when they sign up for each course. Some find that they take an interest in a area of study they thought would be boring. Who knows, it might even lead to a new career field for someone.

Students often take advantage of the free food that is served in Spadoni Park by the Student Activities Office. This also gives students a chance to socialize with their peers.

Campus Program Board is the group responsible for planning most social activities for students. Included in their calendar of events are concerts, dances, "Movie Night", monthly karaoke, and concerts.

The symbol for Coastal Carolina University is the Atheneum. It is located behind the Continuing Education Building and has been in place since the doors were first opened. It is just one way that Coastal shows its sense of tradition.

When not studying hard, students can be found just "hanging around" campus. One of the things that newcomers notice when they come to Coastal is the students' sense of humor.

Dogs are not only "man's" best friend. Many students are animal lovers; unfortunately Coastal does not allow pets in the dorms. This student states, "They didn't say I couldn't have one in Spadoni Park!"

STUDENT LIFE

Break the Boundaries

What to wear, what to wear. These were the words uttered by many students each morning this year. For some, the choice was easy -- they just picked up two items off the floor and took a whiff -- and if they were clean it was time to go. For others, the decision was a difficult one.

Fashion styles this year were subject to many variations. More and more, the 60's and 70's style of clothes with a few modifications, were seen throughout the campus. The grunge look, that is flannel shirts and faded jeans, was still a popular trend probably because of its comfort and cheap cost.

The main thing that separates the 90's fashion from other decades is -- basically anything goes. There are no set standards to live up to. From short skirts to long skirts, from baggy to tight clothes, people, especially college students, just wore what they felt most comfortable in.

Another part of fashion that seemed to be popular this year was body piercing and tattooing. It was not unusual to see many people with their noses and or belly buttons pierced. Tattoos were even more common. A few years back these two forms of fashion were considered "alternative" or for "strange people". This year, however, students allowed other body parts to be pierced just as naturally as an ear lobe would be. Others felt that tattooing was just another art form that could be individualized from person to person.

To sum fashion up this year is to say there really was no way to describe it - people just came as they were!

SURVEY RESULTS IN!

Fresh off the press, the new news in men's fashion is that boxers are preferred over briefs eight to one. These men could hardly wait to sport the new designs for boxer shorts.

LOOK OUT WORLD! HERE I COME!

The grunge look has been modified to appear a little more dressy but still casual. This look is very popular among college students because it is comfortable and can be put together quickly.

WHAT ARE YOU LOOKING AT, PUNK?
Lynn shows how the 60's have influenced modern styles. Shorter shirts, usually with horizontal stripes are often seen with drop waisted jeans or baggy jeans.

THE BARE MINIMUM
Amy Alonzi and a friend keep cool during the hot weather by wearing their bikini tops with shorts. Bathing suit tops were often seen on campus, instead of the popular tank-top or halter top.

DRESSING IT UP!
Beaded necklaces and unusual jewelry are becoming a unique way to ornament oneself as this student is doing. Some say that rock stars and entertainers are responsible for this trend.

BOTTLED BLONDE? OR IS THAT YOUR REAL COLOR?

While in a trance at Club Recruitment Day, this student doesn't seem to notice our camera capturing his unusual hair style on film.

NEAT AND PULLED BACK FOR CLASS
Adalia Ellis, freshman, has naturally curly hair that she keeps under control with a scrunchi. Scrunchies were a very popular hair item for females this year.

HAIR RAISING MORNING
It's not every day people can wake up and look just like Edward "Scissor-hands" but for Kevin it's not hard at all. The 'I just rolled out of bed' look can be seen on campus by almost every student at least once.

ANYONE GOT A COMB?

Dredlocks are becoming a popular trend for some students on campus. Here, Eric Wise shows his individuality by combining dreadlocks with shaved sides.

KEEP IT SHORT

Keep it short to stay cool on campus. This style also known as "the pixie" is becoming popular with women because it is easy to fix and comfortable to wear.

"DARLING, YOU'RE SO DIVINE"

A new '90's dressy style is to wear hair up and curled. This student sports her chic style that keeps her cool for the hot weather.

WEAR IT UP

Jan, also known as Pebbles, pulls up his hair on top of his head while he cruises the dorms on his bike. Today, long hair or pony tails are widely accepted for males.

Getting a Head Start

Uniqueness Shown in Hair Styles of Students

Dredlocked, bobbed, spiraled, flat topped, colored, and shaved; these are just a few of the things students put their hair through this year. While some went for shocking looks, others were content with a traditional style.

When questioned about why they chose one certain style to wear their hair, the answers Coastal students gave varied. Many agreed that there was no time to fuss about what their hair looked like in the morning; the days of hair spray and gel were over for many. Others said they wanted to wear their hair in a way that says something about themselves. The way college students wore their hair this year, like the other personal choices they made, was non-conforming. It was generally more accepted to be yourself and have your own individual look than to try to be like everyone else.

Another reason for the trend to wear hair in an unusual or nontraditional manner was the fact that these students felt they should take advantage of the opportunity to be different before they enter the dreaded work force.

Whatever the style was, it was accepted. Unusual was the mainstream as far as hair styles were concerned.

What's in store for hair in the future? We will just have to wait and see.

SOMEBODY HAS TO DO IT

A student washes dishes and collects the trash in her dorm room (her roommates told her to do so or else.) Daily cleaning is necessary in the dorms when there are four people sharing an apartment.

STOCKING UP FOR THE WEEKEND

Two students carry groceries to their dorm room. Being away from home for the first time carries new responsibilities with it, including buying groceries every week.

HOME TO MANY

The dorms at Coastal are said to be nicer than on most campuses. They consist of a living room, a kitchen area, two sinks, a separate room for a shower and a toilet, and four individual bedrooms.

A New Place Called Home

The Trials and Tribulations of Living on Your Own

Living away from home for the first time gave many students a whole new set of problems aside from studying and working. Buying groceries, paying bills on time, cooking meals and cleaning became a first time experience for some students.

When asked about how they liked living away from home for the first time the common response was that the freedom to do whatever they wanted was great, but there were still some major drawbacks. Putting up with roommates that are not exactly what they expected was the number one complaint among those who had the opportunity to live in the dorms.

On the other side of the spectrum were those students who still had to live at home while attending college. For whatever reason, whether it be lack of money or convenience, those that lived at home said that they only basically slept there.

Brandy Hamilton, Senior, stated, "I have classes at 8:30 every morning through 2:30 P.M. and I go to work until 11 P.M.. After I finish studying I have no time left except for a couple of hours of sleep. For me, living at home is okay because I would not have the time to take care of or even enjoy my apartment."

"ARE WE ACTUALLY STUDYING FOR THIS EXAM?"

Two friends study and discuss the current events in Haiti, in the living room of one of the dorms. Dorm rooms were voted the least likely place to study for exam. "With four roommates it's hard not to discuss the up-to-date gossip instead of studying for Peterson's exam," said Ami Parker.

A COLORFUL DISPLAY

Decorating the walls of one's living quarters is a popular trend among most students. Here one resident of the dorms has bright posters in his bedroom.

"I'M GOING TO BE LATE FOR CLASS"

With only six minutes to finish getting dressed this Coastal student hurries to his class. If the living quarters are too comfortable, such as containing a bed, it could be hazardous to any college education.

WHERE DO THESE SOCKS GO?

While having plenty of clothes for every day of the semester, this Coastal student tries hard to use her closet space effectively.

"ARE YOU READY TO PLAY US?"

Volleyball is considered to be a favorite sport among many students. Some serious matches are played in front of the dorms everyday.

"HI, MY NAME IS...."

Meeting new people is what college is all about. With the friendly attitude of Coastal's students it doesn't take very long to acquire a great set of friends.

"WE WANT YOU!"

The newly formed "Hack Society" tries to recruit new members for its group. Hackey sack is an activity that is often played in small groups around campus.

FRIENDS FOREVER

It doesn't always happen, but sometimes roommates turn out to be lifelong friends. Although students may make requests for who they want their roommates to be, it is possible to be stuck with someone you just can't live with.

Examining the Lives of Coastal Students

Q

What aspects make up a Coastal student?

A

The only way to answer that question is to take a closer look and then decide.

RAKING IT IN

A resident outside the Commons helps keep the lawn in front of his room looking good. The Commons, which are located in Quail Creek subdivision, serve as the overflow when the dorms are filled.

SMOKE EM' IF YOU GOT EM'

A Coastal student smokes her last cigarette before going to class. Despite health concerns, student smoking appears to be on the rise.

A PEACEFUL PLACE

This student finds that Kimbel Library is the perfect place to catch up on his assignments and reading.

TIME FOR INVOLVEMENT

A student finds time in her busy schedule to help the Student Government Association with Class President elections.

WORK, STUDY, WORK, STUDY...

A student manages his time wisely by studying his notes while working as a weight room attendant in the physical education building.

"LET ME CHECK MY SCHEDULE"

Appointment books and calendars keep students on the right track. The student activities office provides students with a free planner with all school events indicated on it.

SO MUCH TO DO, SO LITTLE TIME

A student stops by the Student Activities Office to fill out paper work for his Fraternity's event.

Where Did All the Time Go?

Hectic Schedules Hard

Not enough time in the day." A common phrase used frequently by students who were procrastinators and had poor time management skills this year.

Time management would have been an excellent way to keep these students lives running smoothly. Therefore, the Atheneum staff devised a step by step method to insure this doesn't happen to students in the future.

1. Make a daily schedule or "to do" list. Obtaining a planner is the best way to keep track of these.

2.. Having a crammed schedule can cause big problems. Leave time in your day for unexpected setbacks or unforeseen problems; this will prove to be timesaving in the future.

3. Plan ahead. If there are assignments or meetings due several weeks away, leave adequate time to complete each one. Set your due date a few days in advance from the actual one.

4. Go over notes and read texts daily; this saves on studying (or cramming at the last minute) for tests.

College life can be a very trying time for a lot of people. The stress and pressure to make good grades and be involved can sometimes cause health problems and even cause anxiety. Every day students make dozens of decisions that can affect their future. These choices often directly affect one's stress level. So plan ahead and manage your time properly to stay healthy and stress free.

OH MY GOSH!

What would life be like without a little bit of gossip now and then. The area right in front of the Student Center is a perfect place for these two friends to catch up on the latest news.

HANGING OUT WITH THE BOYS

Trust plays a big part in friendships. Here a group of friends at Rocktoberfest find time to squeeze in some "Male bonding".

From Friendship to Love Students Experienced the Ups and Downs Of...

Relationships

Establishing a new home base and routine was difficult for many new students this year. Making new friends and love interests were even more exasperating for students. The fact is people needed each other for various reasons, whether it was for a shoulder to cry on or someone to party with; the reasons were too numerous to count.

Getting along with these people all the time was another matter. No matter how hard students tried they still seemed to get into heated arguments over trivial things.

Perhaps the true test of a relationship among students this year was honesty. Students commented that most fights among friends and loved ones stemmed from lack of communication and/or those "little white lies."

With the rise of cases of AIDs among the 18-25 age group, being honest and practicing safe sex became a life and death issue for all those who were sexually active.

Being Safe While Intimate

Sex at Coastal was a difficult subject to approach this year. A lot of students were apprehensive when it came to discussing the repercussions of sexual relations. With AIDS and sexually transmitted diseases on the forefront, becoming intimate had to be taken seriously with added precautions. Although many young adults expressed that they were aware of these dangers, some admitted that they did not always use protection.

SHOW US YOUR DIMPLES

You know you have a true friend when that person has the ability to bring a smile to your face no matter what kind of mood you're in. Everyone needs a special someone to lift his spirits or give him a good laugh.

GO AHEAD, TWIST MY ARM

Occasionally a good friend or significant other can talk you into doing something you would not normally do. It looks like these two are up to something by the look on their faces.

GO AHEAD, LEAN ON ME

These two friends are not afraid to show how much they care for each other by walking arm and arm back to the dorms.

GIVE ME A GREAT BIG BEAR HUG

Every once in a while friends get carried away and just have to express their true emotions for each other. These two girls are obviously sharing a special moment.

Students Find That Community Service Can Be Fulfilling

Giving Their Best

The effort to help others was in full force this year. Students seemed more willing to spend a little extra time to help those who needed it most. S.T.A.R.. (Students Taking Active Responsibility) came back for its second year under the leadership of Juli Beckwith and Erika Heinemann. S.T.A.R. was Coastal's community service liaison with local help groups. A few of the events they sponsored were a blood drive, Halloween for the handicapped, "Festival of Lights" (A Christmas program for local children), and "Into the Streets"-a day when students go out to the local community to help specific groups in need. The Jump Rope for Heart "Jump-a-thon", sponsored by the HPER (Health, Physical Education, and Recreation) Club was also very successful. Three students jumped for 24 hours straight as part of the drive for money. These were just a few of the events of which Coastal Students were a part.

A LIFE THREATENING ISSUE

Chad Lucas from CARE Team, a local AIDS support group, explains the dangers of being HIV positive. Chad also gives information on how students can volunteer to help those with AIDS.

TRICK OR TREAT

Dorm residents dress up for the Halloween Carnival in which local children go from dorm to dorm and receive candy from students. Afterward they will play games in Spadoni park.

IS IT OVER YET?

Freshman Paul Fulton takes time out between classes to donate blood in the Student Center. The Drive sponsored by the American Red Cross of Horry County comes to Coastal on a regular basis.

MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE

A student during Alcohol Awareness Week hands out information on the repercussions of drinking and alcoholism as well as support groups available.

A JUMP FOR ALL

During the HPER Club's Jump Rope for Heart day students from everywhere show up to give their support and have a little fun.

Getting Up Can Be A Big Deal For Some Students

Just Five More Minutes

Let us face it, getting out of bed can be a real pain in the *#!#=@^! Especially when you have a quiz in two of your classes and you have an 8:30 class. We have all experienced the "I partied too much, then I went to bed this morning syndrome." We will shorten it with the acronym "IPTMTIWTBTMS" to make things simpler. The scientific name for that type of student is "partiuschomagnusmaximus." But back to the subject of waking up in the morning. Some of us will have the "I will hit my snooze button twelve more times syndrome." There are remedies to this snooze button problem. Try setting your radio on a country music radio station; that is sure to wake you up. And if that doesn't work, then the radio plus buzzer usually does the trick. If you are still having problems with the snooze button, there is one last ditch effort to rectify the situation. Move your alarm clock out of reach. Now this will be difficult, but in time you will adjust. You must make sacrifices in order to better yourself (yeah right).

TURN OFF THE LIGHT

Napping on someone's lap is the best way to catch a few extra winks. Unfortunately, you run the risk of a rude awakening either by someone turning on a bright light, or the person actually getting up.

IT CAN'T BE 7AM ALREADY!

Facing the music (or the buzzer) early in the morning can be a rude awakening for some people.

WAKE ME UP IN A HALF AN HOUR

Yeah, right. If a friend ever tells you to wake him or her in a half an hour, give him or her a flat out "no." Trying to wake someone from a cat nap on a couch can be a deadly experience if he or she is sound asleep.

DOZING OFF

The worst mistake a student can make is trying to study while in bed. The end result is that fifteen minutes later the person is usually asleep.

CUDDLING UP

Who says you're too old to sleep with stuffed animals. Getting up is hard to do with fuzzy little creatures surrounding you.

PLEASE DON'T DROOL

When you finally do get out of bed, there is nothing worse than finding your pillow soaked with drool. The best possible way to avoid this is to sleep on your back.

EMPTY AGAIN

Does this look familiar? Students often find that the money they receive from their parents or a job doesn't always make ends meet.

DO I GET ANY CHANGE?

Food money is a large part of anyone's budget. Because students are constantly on the go, more money is often spent eating out than on groceries.

WHAT A DEAL!

One good thing about being a college student is great discounts. This year the Campus Program Board held "Movie Night" once a month for which the student price was only two dollars.

THE CHEESE IS FREE, RIGHT?

Since Pizza Hut became available to students in the cafeteria this year, it became a popular choice for students. The price of the items ranged from $1.49 to $2.50, which was well within students' budgets.

PUMP IT UP

Gas costs can add up when you're on a road trip. Luckily these students are on a school sponsored trip and they didn't have to fill up the tank for their van.

Money A Problem For College Students

"I'm Broke Again!"

There were five dollars left in your pocket and a week until pay day and no groceries left in the place. How would you ever get to go out Friday night? This was a common problem among students this past year as they realized that they were broke again.

A constant source of agony for most students was where they would find their next dollar. Between rent, utilities, groceries and entertainment, the bucks seemed to just burn holes in people's pockets. Although the majority of students held some sort of job or received money from their parents, it was still not enough to make it. Then there were all those unforeseen emergencies like car breakdowns, new books to purchase, or that very important night out on the town. How did these students deal with this lack of funds? In some pretty creative ways. To cut down on their grocery bills, macaroni and cheese and Ramen noodles became the dinner of choice for a lot of students. Bumming was also a popular alternative for coming up with the bare essentials. Some popular items to bum were cigarettes, laundry detergent, food, and most importantly - money. If all else failed and desperation set in, you knew you could count on Mom and Dad, and of course - Western Union.

It's All Greek to Them

The Greek organizations on the Coastal campus have experienced an increase in numbers over the past few years. Many attribute this to the diversity among the brothers and sisters of the groups. Aside from friendship, there is more to offer than some people think.

Currently there are five fraternities and five sororities on the Coastal campus. The fraternities are Alpha Sigma Phi (national), Phi Chi Epsilon (local), Pi Kappa Phi (national), Sigma Phi Epsilon (national), and Sigma Nu (national). The sororities are Alpha Gamma Phi (local), Alpha Kappa Alpha (national), Phi Sigma Sigma (national), Sigma Delta Phi (local), and Zeta Tau Alpha (national). Although these organizations are primarily social, they all are involved in community service and support a national cause.

Each fall and spring semester the Greek organizations are busy preparing for RUSH. RUSH is the recruiting procedure that individuals who are interested in joining a Greek organization must go through. The different groups have booths set up in the Student Center with information on their activities and interests. Those wishing to "pledge" or wanting to join are encouraged to explore all the groups to find one best suited to them. The Greek organizations give presentations at the end of RUSH week and then "bids" are sent out. "Bids" are the organizations' acknowledgment of interest in the individual. If accepted the person then becomes a "pledge" to that group. One must remain a pledge for one semester to become a brother or sister.

Some myths about Greek organizations are that they are just a group of people who "buy" their friends, or that outlandish feats must be accomplished as part of the initiation process. The members of these groups stress that this is not the case. It is up to the individuals if they want to eventually join groups - there is no pressure attached. As far as "hazing" is concerned, it has become a national rule among Greeks to abstain from any form of it.

THE FIRST AND THE FINEST

"My, oh my, what a wonderful day. Many new pledges coming our way. Zippede doo da, zipedee ay." The members of Phi Sigma Sigma gather at club recruitment day to give information on their sorority.

"I WISH I HAD A PADDLE AS BIG AS YOURS"

A Sigma Nu brother shows off his paddle to a friend. Paddles in Greek sororities and fraternities are given to forge a friendship between members.

HAVE YOU HEARD...

A congregation of sorority sisters is common in front of the student Center. It is a great place to catch up on the latest gossip.

ROLE PLAYING

You put your left foot in, you put your right foot in, you put your minds together and you spin your thoughts around. Members of various sororities practice a skit during RUSH week.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT!

Phi Sigma Sigma "joined" together in sisterhood to sell candy apples at Rocktoberfest, an event to increase camaraderie.

INTERESTED IN ENGLISH?

These students are recruiting members for the English Honor Society (Sigma Tau Delta). They are also selling discounted books for the writing center.

"GIVE ME MORE INFORMATION"

The HPER (Health, Physical Education, and Recreation) Club participated in Club Recruitment Day with hopes of promoting fitness on campus.

CATCHING UP ON BUSINESS

Students are not the only ones who enjoy Club Recruitment Day. Here Dr. Bob Squatriglia, Vice President, and Geoff Parsons, Coordinator of International Programs, discuss the semester's activities.

Strength in Numbers

Clubs Have Different Ways of Recruiting

Not a day went by this year that flyers could not be seen crowding the stairwells of the buildings on campus. Displaying these flyers was the main way a group could attract new members or publicize an event they sponsored. Although Coastal is a relatively small school, there were around 50 clubs and organizations recognized on campus. Each semester these groups had the opportunity to come together at "Club Recruitment Day." The event was sponsored by the Student Activities Office and was held in Spadoni Park, in front of the Student Center. Free food and music accompanied by various club booths made the events very successful for recruitment. Other activities that required some recruitment were the "Jump Rope for Heart", the March of Dimes Walk-a-thon and a few other community service functions.

Whatever the reason was, one thing that these groups learned was that recruiting was not always easy and that some type of incentive gained the best results.

ENJOYING THE WARM WEATHER

The sun beats down on the some of the members of the Psychology Club along their advisor Dr. Albniak. They make the best of it though by telling a few jokes to try to make each other laugh - looks like they are successful.

"JUMP EVERYBODY, JUMP, JUMP..." The participants at "The Jump Rope for Heart" event don't quite know what they are getting themselves into. Continuous jumping is encouraged by guys like this one who happen to have loud voices.

ALPHA DELTA PRE LAW

HMMMMMMMM. The message board in the Student Center overflow area is a great way to advertise for various clubs and events. It is also a way to find out when the clubs you are in are meeting.

WANTED: Members!
Phi Alpha Delta, the pre-law fraternity, displays their information for any interested members. The fraternity is open to any major but has certain requirements such as GPA.

THAT'S ENTERTAINMENT!

For all of those who are listless, restless, or just plain bored, the TV. room in the Student Center offers salvation - "cable television"

BILLIARDS, ANYONE?

A relaxing game of pool is a great way to pass the time of day or to earn some money.

SLEEPING THE DAY AWAY!

This student is relaxing at a CCU vs. Duke track meet. What better way to show school spirit.

STROKE AFTER STROKE

Swimming laps in the pool at Coastal is not only a great form of exercise but allows many students to relieve tension and stress while staying comfortable.

GOOFING OFF

There is a sand volleyball court right in front of the dorms that makes it very convenient for students to play a few games to relax and socialize.

CRANK UP THE TUNES

Something strange and mysterious can be heard in the library on an average day. While walking up and down the aisles faint sounds of music can be heard from many different areas. Needless to say, headphones provide an easy form of relaxation.

READ TO REDUCE TENSION

A student picks up an new edition of Alternatives newspaper to get the latest on the cultural side of Horry County. Reading, whether it be a book or newspaper, is a good way to escape into another world.

Give It a Rest

Students Find Different Outlets for Relaxation.

A good quantity of time this year was spent sitting back and relaxing. The benches outside the dorms were a famous place to just kick back, smoke a cigarette, or hang out with friends. Some people actually preferred the benches over their beds. And for the time that you wanted a more private atmosphere, to get all your thoughts together, your dorm room would have to do. Of course you may have had to kick a few hundred people out first. Some students liked to take Sunday as a total bum around day and watch all the movie specials on TV. The living room had to be fully equipped with pillows, blankets, and of course plenty of popcorn and beverages. Relaxation was a very important part of this year. Whether it was taking a nap, listening to music, or just sitting and talking to friends, students found a way to relieve tension and clear their minds. And with all the added stress of school work and social activities, everyone needed a little time to do nothing and enjoy it.

No Transportation Causes Problems Among Students

Life Without a Vehicle

It was Friday night, everyone in the dorms was running around getting ready to go out. You sat there wondering if anyone would ask you to go with them. Finally, one of your friends came along and said, "Hey, we're going to Studebaker's, wanna come? You pondered this question with guest thought. You really didn't want to go to Studebaker's and listen to beach music all night. The problem was you had no car!

The lack of transportation among students, especially freshman, posed a big inconvenience this year. Many students came to Coastal this year from out of state thinking that not having a car would be no big deal, however, the situation was quite the opposite.

Because the Coastal campus is situated away from most job opportunities and places of social interest a lot of people had to beg, borrow, or steal cars from their peers if they wanted to go somewhere or do something.

"DON'T LAUGH I KNOW WHAT I'M DOING"

This student may be without a car before he knows it. Car breakdowns pose a big problem for students, especially when their funds are running low.

ONE LAST PUFF

A coastal student gets ready to take his ride back to the dorms after his classes. Resident students are not allowed to drive their cars to class.

ON FOOT

Walking from the commons, otherwise known as "the getto", can be long and tiresome for some students.

"WHOSE CAR IS THIS ANYWAY?"

Patrick Herrmann borrows a car to run errands one afternoon . Not having a car can cause great problems for students since most shopping areas are not within walking distance.

OUT OF BREATH

This student gets his daily exercise in by walking to the library to study.

HITCHING A RIDE

Luckily for some students, friends who have cars are willing to give rides to those who are not fortunate enough to have their own vehicle.

AMERICA'S "FIRST LADY"
The death of Jackie Onasis Kennedy prompted a review of her life in movies, television and magazines. Jackie was praised for breaking new ground for First Ladies.

A REAL MARRIAGE?
Many people were sceptical of the spontaneous marriage of Lisa Marie Presley and Michael Jackson. Some felt it was done to clear Jackson's image from the accusation of child molestation.

THEY CAME IN HUNDREDS
The United States was forced to take action in Haiti as hundreds of refugees of all ages kept fleeing to America.

RELENTLESS WAITING

Thousands of refugees from Rwanda wait in endless lines for hours to receive a few pounds of food for their families. Massive deaths occurred from disease and starvation as a result from a civil war.

FLASHBACK

The 25th anniversary of Woodstock was celebrated this year when thousands of young people showed up for the three day festival that featured various musical artists and other exhibits.

AIN'T HE CUTE

THE RISES AND THE FALLS OF 1994-95

The Year Included Ups and Downs On The Homefront
As Well As In Foreign Affairs.

The year 1994 was marked with a series of highs and lows. The U.S. mourned over the death of famous First Lady Jackie Onassis Kennedy.

New social ground was broken when the progressive nature of "Generation X" collided with the idealism of the 60's during the official 25th anniversary celebration of Woodstock. Life in America was not all peace, love, and happiness however. In the spotlight this year was O.J. Simpson; a national sports hero accused of the brutal murders of two people, one being his ex-wife.

On the Political forefront, President Clinton's approval rate had a constant drop as the American people felt skeptical of his plans both domestically and internationally. An obvious reflection of this was shown during the voting process when the Republicans gained control of congress.

The U.S. focused more on foreign affairs due to several major conflicts overseas. America's primary concern was acting as a mediator to keep the peace in other countries. We have seen the reemergence of former President Carter's negotiating skills during the Haiti conflict. The situation in Bosnia continued with U.S. troops trying to break up a vicious civil war. Finally, the U.N. had to take drastic measures in Rwanda to try and end the starvation and suffering caused by the huge migration of refugees fleeing from their country.

In the entertainment industry the spotlight was cast on celebrity Michael Jackson and his secret marriage to Lisa Marie Presley. America looked towards comedy shows such as Seinfeld, Frazier, Home Improvement, and Rosanne for a little relief from daily pressures.

GUILTY OR INNOCENT?

The hearings and trial of O.J. Simpson captured American audiences for many months during 1994-95. The case was full of controversy as evidence, testimony, and fairness were all brought into question.

THE NEW LOOK

Coastal's cafeteria was under new management this year, and with that came new and exciting changes. The menu size increased to include Pizza Hut pizza, a make your own salad bar, and extended hot dishes.

I DON'T HAVE THE TIME TO COOK

It seems that some students are just not made for cooking. The pressures of cooking healthy food gets to one Coastal student as he tries to prepare grilled chicken breasts.

Students Find Healthy Eating Sometimes Difficult
With Busy Schedules

Eating Right Not Easy

Have the Freshman 15 increased to be the Freshman 20? Some food for thought - this year when Coastal students were asked how much weight they gained after entering college, the answer was either "nothing" or "twenty pounds." It seemed that the way people ate drastically changed when they entered college.

The cafeteria offered some healthy dishes for students, but most opted for french fries and a grilled sandwich over the broccoli quiche that was served.

As far as cooking their own meals, many found they did not have the time or did not know how to cook anything but a box of macaroni and cheese. The end result was they ate out or ordered pizza 95% of the time.

Of course this isn't to say that all students were not health conscious; in fact most people that ate junk food would have really liked to be eating better; they just did not have the ability or the time to plan healthy dishes for themselves.

What Do Students Eat Most?

1. Pizza
2. Hamburgers
3. Subs or hoagies
4. Macaroni & cheese
5. Spaghetti
6. Soup
7. Frozen dinners
8. Peanut butter and jelly
9. Salads
10. Snack food-chips, crackers

SO, WHAT DO YOU WANNA HAVE FOR LUNCH?
 The cafeteria serves grilled sandwiches for students to grab between classes. Because foods like hamburgers and french fries are quick to grab, they are the most common meals among students.

MUSIC TO OUR EARS

Starting off the show is Legace'. Their songs are sung in an a Capella style which seems to put everyone in a relaxed state.

ROCKTOBERFEST

Festival Full of Food, Friends, and ROCK!

This year the Campus Program Board brought Rocktoberfest to the CCU campus. The event started at 12 P.M. on October 15. Fortunately it was a bright sunny day, even though that it had been raining for a straight week. Murphy's law did not take place on this eventful day, however. Fraternities, sororities, and other organizations attended to provide food and other services to the concert goers. The a Capella sounds of Legace' were heard as this band opened the showcase. Floating Men was the second band up and they played mainly alternative rock. Drag added with a variation of the electric guitars as well as tambourines. And finally musical diversity was fortified with the nationally renowned reggae band Kindred Soul. Along with sunny weather, great music and great food this event was a success with almost 400 people in attendance.

WAITING FOR THE RUSH

The Smaller the Better

Students Find Comfort in Small groups

What did students prefer to do more often than going club hopping on the weekends? Partying with a few friends of course. It was obvious that this year the best memories were made when the closest of friends got together for a night of jokes, movie watching, or just talking. Because of the awareness of dangers of drinking, and driving, staying at home was the best way to avoid trouble.

Because the nightlife in Myrtle Beach was just around the corner from Coastal, some students often made plans to go out on the town. The first mention of a party, however, and these plans were dropped. The biggest craze to come in 1994 was definitely house parties. The music, the people, and the closeness was hard to surpass.

BEING PREPARED

OK, EVERYONE, LINE UP

The best trips are had when a group of good friends go together. This gang of students decided that a camping trip would not be complete without canoeing.

KISS US; WE'RE IRISH

The best place to be on St. Patrick's day is Savannah, Georgia. This group of students is busy enjoying all the culture there is to experience.

HANGIN' OUT

Mike Handforth enjoys the sights at Mardi Gras in New Orleans. Partying has become the main tradition in this Louisiana City. (Probably because you can throw up on the street and not be hassled by the police.)

Gotta Get Away!

For Relief Students Hit the Road to Anywhere and Everywhere

In order for students to kick back, relax and forget about the stress of classes, road trips are a necessity. Road trips are a way to bond with friends and create memories that will last forever. Mardi Gras is always a popular trip to take with your good friends. People are crowded in the streets, making it impossible even to move, and on the balconies getting happy, meeting new people and enjoying time away from the books. Another way people find to release their stress is camping with a big group of friends. Camping creates a need for team effort, getting tents up, setting up camp-fires and all that fun stuff. After setting up, the fun really begins, being alone in the wilderness leaves a lot of time for good conversation. At night sitting in front of the fire with your closest friends having conversations you could only have with them is one of the most amazing things.

The most popular type of trip usually only lasts a day or two. Students who enjoy the concert scene almost always have to take to the highway because big groups rarely come to Myrtle Beach. Next time the pressure of life starts to get you down, get on the road.

GOTCHA!

Getting Students on Film When They Least Expect It

The reality about college is that you lose some of your privacy. Whether it is within your group of friends, in your dorm, or in your apartment there will be a time when you want to be left alone. In the spirit of lack of privacy, we felt that it was our responsibility here at the Atheneum to capture students at their worst or when they least expected it. So in the future, remember always to look your best because you will never know when a yearbook staff member may be ready and willing to snap your picture.

JUMPING FOR JOY

The junior varsity cheerleading team gets in shape by practicing in Spadoni park every afternoon. Practice for the cheerleaders consists of running laps around the park as well as practicing cheers.

GET OUT OF MY WAY

Riding across campus from the Kimbel Library to the Wall building gives this student the perfect opportunity to exercise his body. Students invested in bikes, to help with their fitness routines.

Keeping Physically Fit is Easy to Do on Coastal Campus

Pushing it to the Limits

It became evident this year more than ever that students at Coastal wanted to get in shape.

There were so many options for students to choose from that there was basically no excuse for anyone not to choose some activity.

Firstly, Coastal offered numerous classes for those trying to increase their agility and endurance, or to tone up. Rock climbing, adult fitness, tennis, aerobics, dance, and swimming were some of the possibilities. And for those who felt that they did not have the energy or motivation — too bad! In order to get a passing grade in these classes students had to attend almost every session.

For the really dedicated ones, joining a sports team gave them more than enough exercise to keep physically fit. Daily practices, exercises and a lot of running are required for almost every sport's team members.

Another reason for the increase of physical activity among students was the fact that it was fun. Daily games of volleyball were played in front of the dorms, and groups of students roller blading around the campus were seen in abundance. Perhaps the most frequent form of exercise was bike riding. As the campus expanded, it was necessary for many to obtain bicycles to get from one end of the campus to the other in a matter of minutes.

Congratulations, Coastal, for setting the new tradition of being fitness minded.

“How much is too much?”

- To maintain a healthy body a person should exercise at least three times a week for 20 minutes each session to keep his/her heart rate up.
- To lose weight, a person should exercise about five times a week for at least 30 minutes each time.

AT LEAST ONE MORE LAP

Coastal's swimming pool allows students like this one to swim laps to keep fit during the breaks in their class schedule. The pool is open to all students and faculty every day, including the weekends.

WHERE DID THAT ONE GO?

Kyle Griffiths practices his backhand on a Coastal tennis court. Tennis is a great way to keep up a person's heart rate.

KEEPING UP THE PACE

Groups of students such as this one can be seen jogging around campus in the afternoons. Many sports teams require the members to jog or run in order to keep in shape.

PUMP IT UP, BABY

Although it does not really increase one's heart rate, lifting weights can tone up muscle and burn off body fat. This Coastal student proves to his peers that he can lift weights.

CHUG IT DOWN

Joe Bissett and Ken Womer have a drinking contest outside the Student Center on CINO DAY.

Students are Still Partying But In a Safe Way Drinking Responsibly a Must

Responsible drinking among college students increased this year. Students tended to party at home more, thereby reducing the likelihood of driving drunk. Coastal remained a dry campus this year as it has always been. But the fact is that students this year were going to drink no matter what anyone did about it.

This year several measures were taken to decrease the amount of drinking on campus. First, Resident Assistants were given the responsibility of doing periodic checks on dorm rooms to make sure there were no parties in which alcohol was being served. If caught, the resident was subject to fines and or alcohol counseling.

In general, students were more aware of the dangers of drinking too much and were more sensitive towards their friends by providing safe rides or letting the intoxicated person "crash" at his/her house.

Tips For Having a Safe Party

- Serve food
- Drink in moderation
- Make sure everyone has a safe ride home
- Stop serving alcohol one hour before the party ends
- Do not let intoxicated friends leave with someone they do not know very well

ONE MORE BEER

During CINO DAY students gather at the beer sale booth before it closes. Since Coastal is a dry campus CINO DAY is the only time in which students are able to buy beer on campus.

A SOCIAL THING

Sometimes students over 21 will have a social drink among friends. Because students are aware of the dangers involved in driving drunk, staying at home while drinking is a safe and common alternative for students.

BUDWEISER--KING OF BEERS

ALONG WITH A NEW SCHOOL YEAR COME NEW RESPONSIBILITIES THAT WE AS STUDENTS HAVE TO DEAL WITH ON A DAY-TO-
-DAY BASIS. THIS TRADITION IS KNOWN AS

ACADEMICS

The "5 Year Plan" Becoming the Norm

New Degree Program

What is your class status? asked your new professor on the first day of class. You hesitated and responded, "a second year senior."

The new trend over the past few years for many students has been to receive a degree in about five years.

Most students found that because they had to support themselves while attending school, they could not take more than 12 or 15 credit hours at a time. Although 12 hours is considered full time, it did not mean that it was possible to graduate on time.

Another reason it took people longer to finish their degrees was perhaps because of the increase in core requirements. Because the job market was becoming increasingly more competitive, college curriculums had to be restructured to accommodate the new demands that were being placed on graduates.

Despite the fact that students found themselves spending an extra year in school, they didn't seem to mind too much. Being able to graduate with some extra-curricular activities and better grades under their belts seemed like a more attractive alternative than rushing through courses not being able to keep up because of a heavy class load.

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE

Ryan Brown and Michelle Gilbert look at their core requirements so they can plan out their classes for the next semester.

JUST KEEP ON GOING

Being in school for several years can become monotonous for some. Just making to class every day can take extra motivation.

PLEASE DON'T MAKE ME STAY ONE MORE YEAR!
Sometimes resort to drastic measures so they do not have to stay in school any longer than they have to.

GOING BACK TO SCHOOL

Mysteries of Science

Almost every major at Coastal must take at least two science classes and the corresponding labs to graduate. For many, science courses were simply a pain in the neck and hard to comprehend.

Although most non-science majors agreed that their labs were interesting, they also said they would not take them if they did not have to.

Students commented that the worst part about attending labs was the fact that attendance was mandatory. More than one missed lab class could have resulted in failure of the course. The main reason for the policy is because labs were only given once a week for several hours; one missed session could have put someone drastically behind.

Field Trips a Must For Labs

Fielded trips at Coastal don't happen that often -- unless you are a science major of course. The outdoors is a great place to show students the real thing as opposed to something sitting in a jar. Because Coastal is located near the beach, it makes it easy for the lab classes to conduct some of their experiments. Perhaps this, combined with the knowledge of the professors in the science department, makes Coastal one of the leading schools for Marine Science degrees.

"I DON'T UNDERSTAND"

WAITING FOR CLASS TO BEGIN

Some students dread that one day a week in which they must attend lab class.

RUSHING TO GET IT DONE

Even though labs last three hours, students still rush to beat the clock.

MAKE SURE IT GETS PUT BACK

The Language Lab is open to those students who are enrolled in foreign language classes. There are tapes that enable students to review lessons and vocabulary with aides who can assist also.

Another of the help centers around campus is the Computer Lab. It is there to help students learn or work with computers; also students can type papers or do assignments with the aid of peers if necessary.

The mathematics center offers explanations of math theories and problems that the student may not be able to comprehend in the classroom.

Strange and bizarre sounds will be heard when you enter the foreign language center. Here, students are able to listen to tapes of foreign languages, and receive help learning words and phrases of different languages.

Finally, you may type your little fingers to the bone in the computer lab. Students that have little or no knowledge of computers, this is the place for you. You may use all of the equipment to do your papers and even store your disks there! Most professors require that all papers be typed, so this center can aid with this requirement. In addition to the computer help center, several new computer laboratories are open in the Wall Building for student use. All of the labs and help centers are free to students.

Ad Class Students Get Real Life Experience

THEY GAVE THEIR BEST

The 1993-94 Advertising Club represented Coastal last year at the regional competition and came in sixth place. The members were Brandy Hamilton, Melissa Mack, Chris Enter, Emma Pearce, and Joe Bissett, Paul Olsen (Advisor), Ed Cerny (Advisor). Four of these members returned in 94-95.

One of the most exciting new courses offered this past year was an advertising class that consisted of preparing for the National Advertising Federation's national competition which took place in April.

The class, which evolved from the advertising club, gave students a real life experience in creating a national advertising campaign.

The campaign this past year was sponsored by the Dodge Corporation. The group was given a budget of 4 1/2 million fictional dollars to come up with a complete advertising campaign gearing Neon cars towards college students.

The group was responsible for every aspect that any real advertising firm would have to accomplish, including coming up with a name and logo for itself, conducting surveys throughout college campuses around the United States, and completing marketing research and analyses.

The class was open to any major. The group successfully created a 40 page, in depth, plans book which featured a brief history of the Dodge Corporation, methods of research, information on demographics, advertising tactics and ads created by the team specifically for the campaign.

Five students proudly represented Coastal Carolina University at the regional competition held in Charlotte, NC and received much praise for their presentation and slide show.

Art Classes Provide an Outlet for Students

Endless Possibilities

The arts were alive and well this year at Coastal Carolina University. Aside from Art majors, many students took advantage of the art courses offered to express a side of themselves in an artistic way.

by creating.

One thing that most people did not realize this year was that there were several opportunities to do art work for the local community in addition to national and local competitions and contests.

For instance, the photography class entered a contest for the best picture of a Coastal Carolina scene. The graphic design classes entered numerous design competitions and also created all of the flyers, pamphlets and programs for the theatre department's plays.

Not only did the art classes serve to be stress relieving for some, but also educational and productive for all.

There was a variety of interest by students in art this year, and Coastal offered diversified art courses to fulfill those interests. Among the classes offered were ceramics, print making, photography, life drawing, graphic design, pottery, three dimensional and two dimensional design and painting.

Many students participated in these classes not only to increase their knowledge of the arts, but also to relieve stress

It is Possible to Get an Education -- Once All the Red Tape is Out of The Way

It Takes Time

The biggest problem at Coastal this year was all the red tape that had to be gone through. Registration was even more hectic this year than in the past. The lines for fee payment and financial aid were taking about 2 to 3 hours to get through. And once registration and fee payment were over, there were more important things for students to worry about -- classes. It took a while for students to get into the groove of things. Once the books were bought, syllabi received, and schedules figured out; it was time to buckle down and study. Most students held some type of job to support themselves or to have spending money. This called for some major time management on the students part. No matter what it was this year, it seemed to take time, lots and lots of time.

GETTING CLASSES IN ORDER

The registration office can be the biggest pain in the neck for all students, sometimes the wait can be an hour or more.

CRAMMING TO FINISH

A Student rushes to finish his reading assignment. There is nothing worse than not having an assignment completed on time. Students fear that the professor will call on them to answer a question and they will be speechless.

Getting Your Message Across - The Right Way

Believe it or not, communicating was an acquired skill among the Coastal community this year. Students in particular sometimes found it difficult to convey exactly what was on their minds. Whether it was for a professor, friend, or classmate, simplicity was the key in trying to express an opinion or concern. Luckily, Oral Communication 140 is required for all students.

The Games We Play - Leisure Time

What did Coastal students do during their leisure time this year? Play games of course. For those who enjoyed pool, the game room offered a great alternative to sitting and watching TV between classes. It was located in the Student Center and had video games and pool tables. Sports such as football and volleyball were among the favorite leisurely games people played. Board games like Scatagories and Pictionary were also popular for group meetings.

IF HE MAKES THIS SHOT IT'LL BE TEN DOLLARS!

Two friends battle it out in a game of nine ball in the gameroom. This year two new pool tables were installed in the Student Center's leisure room. New video games and a juke-box were also added to the gameroom.

When it Gets Hard -- Buckle Down

Sometimes frustration can be experienced when it comes to buckling down. Students had to make the choice to either go to the beach on a hot sunny day or study for an upcoming test.

Making decisions like this one often decided the fate of a person's grade. Instead of giving up on classes such as Spanish or classes Calculus, students in the Coastal community strived to make the grade and stay focused. The hard part about buckling down was final. Some waited until the night before to cram all the information for the test - the result was failure.

WHAT PAGE WAS I ON?

Reading takes up the majority of students study time. If weekly reading assignments are not completed, a student is often left with pages and pages to read before a given test.

ON THAT NOTE

Obtaining good studying habits keeps one from having to cram the night before a test or quiz. Here a student outlines the chapter of his text book to help remember the subject matter.

THE CHICKEN IS ON THE LOOSE!

The chicken usually gains attention from young children during his appearances on campus. But recently the chicken has been seen chasing women as well as small children.

THE KICKIN' CHICKEN TRIES BUT FAILS

After being turned down for the "Welcome Back Dance" the Chicken resorts to begging and pleading for a date on Saturday night.

The Kickin' Chicken Spirit

Coastal's mascot, The Kickin' Chicken, has encouraged the students on campus to obtain the Chanticleer spirit for many years. Throughout the 1994-1995 school year the bird supported many school functions. He was seen at basketball games and special events including CINO Day, and many activities dealing with S.T.A.R. (Student Taking Active Responsibility.) The Chanticleer was also sited at "Welcome Weekend." The Chicken amused students and families by playing "Follow the Chicken" and other playful games.

If you see the chicken, do not be scared, go up to him, and give him a BIG HUG! He enjoys it, knowing that he has brought spirit to fellow Coastal Students.

Getting a First-Hand Experience

Marine Science majors had the opportunity to gain first hand experience in their field this year. The task they completed was not for the squeamish, however. It consisted of dissecting a dolphin. The dissection gave students an in-depth look at the parts of the dolphin. Later these students had to identify these parts. While some may argue that dissection is not necessary, others say that it is imperative to understanding the biological makeup of a particular animal. These dissections gave students something they just could not get from a text book.

"PARTS IS PARTS"

The purpose of dissecting the above dolphin was to identify all its parts, thereby providing more information on its functions.

SOMEONE HAS TO DO IT

Two students saw open what appears to be the skull of a dolphin. This is part of a dissection to get a closer look at the inside of its brain.

Getting the Overall Picture

"DON'T FORGET THESE SETTINGS"

Professor Paul Olsen goes over a basic lesson in his black and white photography class. Part of the class focuses on how to select the correct setting in order to take quality pictures.

This year two introductory courses in black and white photography were offered to students. The courses were taught by Professor Paul Olsen of the Art Department. The three hour class taught the history of photography, the basics in camera settings and the equipment that is used. The class also developed their own film and prints in an on-site photography lab. A special project the class encountered included trip to Huntington Beach State Park's Atalaya. The focus of the trip was on taking shots of parts of architecture. There they also took photos of beach scenes to enter in a local photography contest.

Students Stay Informed

Students at Coastal tried their best to stay on top of current events this year. Reading the newspaper was a popular means to accomplish this feat. The time frame between classes turned out to be the best opportunity to catch up on the latest news. It seemed as though interest in what was going on in the world increased. Daily updates on the situation in Haiti and Rwanda were considered important by many. And then there was the O.J. Simpson case. By the end of the year students flipped past any news of this superstar because it was simply redundant. Other reasons for reading the paper were the want ads and, of course, the most important... the comics.

SKIMMING THROUGH

This student reads the Charlotte Observer to gain knowledge of the events within the Carolinas. Newspapers from around the U.S. are available for student use in the library.

A LOOK AT THE GLOBE

John Carter stays ahead of the game by reading up on current international events in The Sun News. Some political science classes require students to read the paper daily.

"WHAT DID I FORGET?"

Playing roller blade hockey in the parking lot of the dorms is a popular activity for many students. This player, however, forgot a key component to playing...the puck.

WARMING UP

Rollerblading can be strenuous on leg muscles. This person warms up for a game of roller hockey by gliding around a parking lot.

A New Way To Get In Shape

Rollerblading hit the Coastal Carolina Campus hard this year. Students could be seen skating around campus at all hours of the night and day. Rollerblading was popular because it was not only fun but a great form of exercise. Rollerblades are adapted from a combination of roller skates and ice skates. The wheels are aligned in a blade-like manner - hence the name. The biggest mistake people made when they first started rollerblading was to underestimate the difficulty level. Rollerblading required a great amount of coordination and balance. It was suggested that pads be worn on knees and hands while people were learning to rollerblade.

One of the games that was adapted to rollerblading was hockey. This was a very fast paced activity that required skill and agility. Fortunately for Coastal students there were plenty of places on campus to practice and play this sport.

Same Year... Different Parking Problem

This year, like all the ones in the past, left many students with a bad memory...the daily fight for a parking space. The students at Coastal were up in arms about not being able to pull right into a space each day. The fact was there was enough parking, but students were not willing to "walk the extra mile" it sometimes took. With the addition of new buildings on campus, there were also additional parking spaces available. Coastal officials argued that they were trying to solve the parking problems students were incurring. The students retorted by saying that dozens of faculty spaces could be seen vacant at any given time. Who knew what the solution was to this very old problem?

SQUEEZE IT IN

Every year students complain about not being able to find a parking space. Part of the problem is that students would be in a hurry and park incorrectly, thereby taking up two spaces.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

No one likes to get a parking ticket but this student admits his mistake and is willing to accept that he is to blame....at least he made it to class on time.

BACKWARDS OR FORWARDS

These dorm students hang out in the "ghetto" and set the style as trendsetters with their favorite baseball hats. Some people often wear their hats in different positions depending on how they feel.

RELAX AND PULL IT BACK

While having a hard day of work in the resident assistant office, Sherri still looks at ease in her baseball hat.

Hats Off to Baseball Caps

For the past few years hats have become a way to express an attitude or present a new look. For college students in particular, styles became more casual. A method for putting hair up became necessary for some students. Baseball caps were a large part of any student's wardrobe. Many people wore baseball hats for different reasons. Despite the baseball strike that took place in 1994, some still wanted to show spirit by displaying their favorite sports team logo. Others wanted to show off the Greek letters of their fraternities or sororities. The rest either had a really bad hair day or they just liked the way the hat looked.

We can't forget the obvious; wearing these hats provided a fashionable way to protect themselves from wind or rain. By examining the various hats people wore this year, it was obvious that baseball caps weren't just for baseball players anymore.

The Pros and Cons of Calling Home

It was Wednesday night and you were sitting at home wondering how you were going to pay for your night out on Friday. It was then that you decided to call home and beg for money. The only draw back was you had to face those hard to answer questions that you seemed to have no response to. "What happened to that fifty I sent you a couple of days ago?" asked your father. You hesitated and responded, "Groceries". A Current update on grades was another mandatory topic that seemed to be hard to escape. And for those who weren't good at little white lies, it was all over. The good part about calling home however, was that it supplied many a form of moral support that friends just couldn't give.

"YEAH MOM, I'M PASSING ALL MY CLASSES"
Random calls home to Mom and Dad are a must for college students. This student finds the support she is looking for through the words of wisdom her family offers (either that or she needs money.)

"I THINK WE HAVE A BAD CONNECTION"
Sometimes calling home can put students on the spot. This student uses a cellular phone to stay in touch with his parents and give them an update on what he is doing.

IN MID AIR

A group of students at Rocktoberfest gather to play a game of hackeysack while the next band gets set up. The game is often more exciting when more people are involved.

IT'S ALL IN THE FEET

Being able to balance the small bag on one's feet can take hours of practice. Here two students take a break in front of the Student Center to show off some of their moves.

Just Kick It!

What craze made Coastal students drop everything and just kick it? Well, it included a small bean bag ball and anywhere from two people up. Yes, hackeysack was one activity that students played just about anywhere. The game consists of continuously tossing the small ball from person to person using your feet only. You could see them between classes frantically tossing the small ball back and forth with their feet in all sorts of twisted maneuvers. It was so popular that the "Hack Society" was started as a Student Government recognized group. The only prerequisite for being in this group was some interest in the game of hackeysack and a little bit of skill. Don't let the ease with which these players move fool you. Anyone that played the game said that it took many hours of practice to perfect a particular move. It was worth all the effort, though, since it provided hours of entertainment and stress relief for more than one student.

When the Bills Come In...

While in college, most people get their first credit cards. More than ever credit card companies targeted the 18 to 25 year old age group with full force. These companies made it very simple for students to get the cards because they didn't have many requirements. The end result... students found themselves in a position where lack of income and large balances kept them from being able to pay off these bills. Unfortunately for the students, this gave many a bad credit history. Students got wise to this however; it could be seen in the Student Center when students blatantly turned down the companies who were trying to get them to sign up.

people still find the sun, sand and relaxation irresistible. During the Spring semester it is not uncommon for students to be seen after classes (sometimes during class) at the beach surfing or lying out in the sun soaking up the rays.

After A Year Of Trouble, CCU Basketball Is Bouncing Back

It was only a year ago that things began to fall apart for the Chanticleers. The basketball coaches were under investigation for numerous NCAA violations. Among those were allegations of visiting high school campuses to recruit players more times than allowed, giving money to prospective players, and changing grades so that otherwise non-eligible students could play. As a result of all this, Coastal's coach of 19 years was replaced.

Coastal's new head coach, Michael Hopkins, is a former assistant coach from East Carolina University. He is also a graduate of Coastal Carolina College and a former Chanticleer. He started the season off well with a 103-94 overtime victory over the Winthrop Eagles.

Back for this third season at Coastal is Senior Guard KeKe Hicks. KeKe has broken the record of 7.798 three-pointers per game set by Wally Lancaster of Virginia Tech from 1987-89. His average has risen to 8.083 attempts per game during his career.

Despite last year's troubles and all of the attention from the media, Coastal's basketball program is pulling itself back together. This year proved to be a challenging one, with a new coach and some players leaving the team. However, the Chanticleers continued to break records and show progress.

Women's Basketball

The Women's Basketball team had an exciting season this year coming off 14-14 overall and 10-8 in the Big South Conference. They finished in sixth place last season. The head coach, Gina Markland, returned for her ninth season. In her coaching career, she has guided the program from the NAIA level to NCAA Division I status. The team has improved considerably since Markland's taking over in 1986. They have gone from 0-24 in 1986-87 to 14-14 in 1993-94. Players returning from last year were Seniors Ali Colgrove and Chrissie Fuller, Juniors Anita Anderson, Tina Boester, and Sophomores Jackie Busch, Meredith Luebbers, and Deana Motto.

New Start

The Lady Chant volleyball team started this season young, with only three returning starters from last year's team. Coastal opened up at the Navy Tournament facing Maryland Eastern Shore. The Chants won 3-0 to go and face the Villanova Wildcats. Villanova proved to be too strong in this one, winning the game 3-0.

Coastal came home to South Carolina and lost a game at The College of Charleston. Finally, Coastal had a home game against S. C. State winning 3-0 to run their record to 2-3. Coastal lost the next two games to run their record to 2-5. It wasn't all that bad for the Chants through the first seven games of the year. Sara Graziano, Coastal's first three sport athlete, racked up 145 kills and 17 blocks. Coastal lost seven of their next nine games to run their record to 4-12. "We're young this year, and young players will make young mistakes," stated head coach Tammi McCaudy-Lee. "We have many new players this year. It's a big adjustment for players to come from high school, or another school, and play with players just as good as they are."

Overall the Lady Chanticleers had a losing record. But it won't be long before the program is turned around according to head coach McCaudy-Lee. "We want to get our players up to the level of competition here. Then in a couple of years we'll be unstoppable."

R unning For The Finish Line

A respectable finish would be in the top three in the Big South,” stated Koster.

Head cross country coach Jimi Koster had his hopes set high for this year's cross country squads. “A respectable finish would be in the top three in the Big South,” stated Koster. Both squads accomplished this goal by finishing second at the Big South Championships.

Leading the way on the female side was freshman Catherine Conder, for whom Koster had high hopes also. “Catherine was the 1994 New Zealand 10,000 meter champion, and should be our top female runner along with Valentine Stumpf,” said Coach Koster.

Freshman Catherine Conder kept her word, finishing with a time of 17:40 in the Championships, breaking a record set by teammate Valentine Stumpf in last year's race. Conder was named Big South Female Runner of the Year and Rookie of the Year with several record performances. She won at the East Carolina Invitational (16:10), UNC Charlotte Invitational (17:51), and at the Big South Championships just to name a few. When Conder didn't finish first for the Chants, defending Female Big South Runner of the year, Valentine Stumpf, did. She finished second behind Conder in every race before winning the Winthrop Invitational with a time of 17:40.

The men were very balanced with a different Chant taking honors in each race.

“The guys are packed together real well,” stated Assistant Coach Shaun Walsh.

Rick Badman won for the Chants at the East Carolina Invitational (19:39), Finbarr Egan took honors at the Pembroke Invitational (21:30), Mark Newell finished first for Coastal at the Winthrop Duals, and Graham Alig finished with a school record (2:16) at the Big South Championship.

This year the Coastal Carolina University Men's soccer team had set their sights on the Big South Tournament. Coming off last year's season with a 6-12-1 record overall, they started anew with 20 new members and finished with a 8-5 record this year and a 5-0 record in the Big South Conference. The Chants were defeated in the second round to the number one UNC Greensboro. This year Coach Banta tried to return with the attitude: "When a team comes to play at Coastal Carolina University, they simply do not win." Coach Banta is entering his 11th season at Coastal Carolina. The Men's Soccer team has a 128-66-11 record under Coach Paul Banta. Since joining the Big South Conference, the Banta-led Chants have posted a 45-16-2 record and have captured two conference Championships.

Reaches for NCAA Tournament This Year

Coastal's golf teams were coming off of respectable '93 campaigns before this year's fall nontraditional season.

The men's golf team opened up in the ninth annual Kiawah Intercollegiate with 17 other schools from around the nation. They finished third behind Virginia Tech, ranked 25th in the nation.

"It was a great team effort and individual performance by both David Pierce and Lorne Kelly," stated head golf coach Tom Brennan.

David Pierce had scores of 68, 72, and 72 to finish two under for the tournament. Finishing right behind him was Wil Weldon. Leading the way for the Chants this year were juniors Lorne Kelly, Will Weldon, T.J. O'Brien, and senior David Pierce.

"The NCAA is definitely within our reach this year," stated Lorne Kelly.

Performances like that have Brennan believing this team could be in the Top 25 in the nation. "This performance could get us a spot in the Top 25, which has never happened for Coastal," stated Brennan.

The female golfers opened up in Florida in the Florida State Seminole Intercollegiate. There they were washed out and were forced to play a 36-hole tournament. The ladies didn't fare as well as the men in their first match, finishing 13th out of 18 teams. A plus for the team is Laura Thijssen who finished 18th overall in the tournament.

"I was pleased by Laura who shot rounds of 80 and 77 for a total of 157," said coach Brennan. Laura was selected to represent her home country The Netherlands against 35 countries in the Women's World Amateur.

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL

Flag football became the extracurricular sport of the year with an increased attendance.

Coastal Carolina offers a variety of intramural sports for those wishing to play in a more competitive atmosphere. None was more popular, however, than flag football. Almost every afternoon during the fall semester students could be seen watching or playing the game in the soccer field. Most of the teams were made up of fraternity members; however anyone was welcome to join in. Since Coastal does not have a regular football team, the intramural teams created an excellent alternative.

English Professor Dr. Millus is proud of the giant fish he caught during his deep sea fishing trip. Fishing is Dr. Millus's main hobby.

SORRY YOU CAN'T PLAY THAT FISH

A member of the Fishing Club gets a little too friendly with a fish that he caught earlier in the day.

PULL!

The HPER Club participates in the "Superstars" competition at the SCAHPERD convention. The Team was the number one superstar team in the state.

ONE OF THE ADVANTAGES OF LIVING AT COASTAL IS BEING A FEW MILES FROM THE BEACH

FOR MANY YEARS THE LOCAL COMMUNITY HAS SHOWN ITS SUPPORT FOR COASTAL IN MANY WAYS. SOMETIMES IT IS EASY TO LET THESE EFFORTS GO UNRECOGNIZED. IT IS IMPORTANT TO NOTE THAT WITHOUT LOCAL BUSINESSES AND BENEFACTORS, COASTAL WOULD NOT BE AS PROMINENT AS IT IS. SOMEDAY THE CURRENT GRADUATES OF THIS INSTITUTION WILL BE THE ONES WHO CONTRIBUTE TO THE WELFARE OF THIS CAMPUS. TIME MUST BE TAKEN OUT NOW TO ACKNOWLEDGE THE ONES WHO HELP MAKE COASTAL WHAT IT IS. THEY ARE OUR LOCAL

A Salute to S.T.A.R

Community Service Organization Enjoys Second Year of Success

S.T.A.R., Coastal's community service organization, had another successful year under the leadership of Juli Beckwith and Erika Heinemann. S.T.A.R., or Students Taking Active Responsibility, was started to serve as a link between coastal students and service organizations on the local and national levels. There were monthly activities planned by S.T.A.R in which all students were invited to participate. The coordinators also provided information for those students wishing to volunteer their time to specific groups on a regular basis. Thank you, S.T.A.R, for helping those in need.

S.T.A.R helped organize Coastal's recognition of World AIDS Day. The day was to remember those who have died from the AIDS virus and to inform people ways to avoid getting it.

A joyous time was had by all the participants in the "Festival of Lights" sponsored by S.T.A.R. Local children came to Coastal for the day for games, presents, and a visit from Santa Claus. Sororities and fraternities had the biggest part in this event.

Brandy Hamilton • Editor 1992-1995

I just have one thing to say. It's over. I am finally graduating (after five years) and moving on to bigger and better ground (if I can find it). • I know what you are thinking..."Oh boy not one of those self-righteous speeches about the trials and tribulations of being an editor." Well your're wrong. • I just want to say thanks for the opportunity to complete four successful yearbooks. I have learned so much, not only practical knowledge but about patience, dedication, stress, and people. I will miss the classes and yearbook production, but it will be the people that I have met that I will miss the most. • There are a million things running through my head right now, and it would take too long to put them into words, so I'll just say good luck future editors, good-bye Coastal, and thanks!

New Name!

Same great service!

WE LOVE HER!

What can we say our advisor Karlene Rudolph is the best advisor in the world. Here she is busy copy editing yearbook pages. Without her copy editing this book would have been a disaster! Thanks Karlene!

DON'T PULL THAT FACE

Jamie Brown was not officially on the yearbook staff but she spent many nights helping the editors with various errands, (and keeping them awake!)

MAKE THAT DEADLINE

Melissa Melton (back) and Caroline Perry (front) work on layouts for the last deadline. The yearbook staff was small this year which made deadlines impossible to finish.

WHAT WILL I SAY?

Believe it or not, but cheesy caption are hard to make up. Caroline Perry struggles to come up with a interesting caption for the sports section.

COMPUTERIZED!

This was the first year Coastal's yearbook was completely done by computer. The work was harder but worth the results say Emma Pearce (sitting) and Karlene Rudolph (standing).

Making That Deadline

HANGING OUT
Between classes members of the yearbook staff can be seen in the Student Center (room 203A) working on the yearbook and catching up on the latest news.

STAPLE YOUR FINGERS TO THE BONE
The most tedious part of being on the yearbook staff is probably getting letters ready to mail. Here a staff person patiently staples 4,000 letters to be sent to parents.

subjected to cruel or inhuman and degrading treatment or punishment."

-Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Every single day people are being murdered by government forces, or they vanish into secret custody as if they never existed.
They "disappear."

Amnesty International is a worldwide human-rights movement. It's quality you can see. Cox Cable is number one in the Cable Television industry in the deployment of groundbreaking Fiber Optic technology, with over 55,000 miles of fiber deployed to date in its 25 locations.

One day, an information superhighway will allow you to control TV like never before. You'll be able to select a movie and watch it instantly through Video-On-Demand; play interactive video games; browse electronic shopping malls; even talk to, and see, each other on Video Telephones...all through your cable television service.

You'll know you're in the future when revolutionary home entertainment services like "Video-On-Demand" (simulated above) and "Video Telephones" become available. These exciting services will one day be possible through Cox Cable's local fiber optic network.

In fact, even as you read this, Cox Cable is laying the foundation for this future through our fiber optic network. So when these services arrive, Cox Cable customers will be among the first to have access to them.

At Cox Cable, we're bringing you into the information age. And you thought we just brought you television.

Group activities were one of the best experiences a Coastal student could have this year. With over 50 clubs and organizations to choose from, there was something for everyone .

People make college a more memorable experience. This year students could be found chatting in Spadoni park.

Kiss me you fool! This year some students got carried away and broke all traditions by showing affection wherever they wished.

New trends were started this year including a rapid increase in the importance of individuality. Being yourself and having your own identity became a big priority for many students. If one thing was to be said about 1994-1995, it was "anything goes."

The most important day in a college student's life is graduation. After four or five years of classes and studying, it is finally over, and it is time to move on to job searching.

Expressing yourself in different ways was the main idea for "generation X" in 1994-95. Here a student reflects on the past year while playing his guitar.

Showing feelings was not a problem for Coastal students this year. A lot of people came to realize early on that the friends they have made during college will be like no others in their life time.

This scene is finally over! For the summer anyway. Students found that extra time between classes gave them the opportunity to rest, socialize or cram for a few minutes before a test.

You go girl! The Coastal Carolina Concert Choir had a very successful year performing in front of live audiences several times.

An education is not the only thing that students acquired from Coastal this year. This student needed a companion for all those nights of studying alone.

Looking back on the academic year 1994-95, tradition held true to its meaning. Many obstacles were overcome to bring Coastal to its present status. This was the last year for students to graduate with a USC diploma. From then on everything would be solely Coastal Carolina University. As the year comes to an end, it is time to reflect on all the changes that have occurred on campus and look toward the future. With new degree programs on the forefront, Coastal is opening its doors to a new set of students. As the new graduates move on to another stage in life, they leave their mark on this institution for years to come.
